

Ogeborg — Care advice Quartz stone

Care advice

Stone Italiana quartz is manufactured using high-quality fine quartz sand that is pressed under high vacuum pressure and heat together with binding agents and selected decorative aggregates. The result is a durable and homogeneous material with high resistance and an expressive appearance.

The material has very low porosity, making it resistant to liquids, stains and everyday wear. The quartz composite is also acid-resistant and requires minimal maintenance, with no need for wax, polish or stone oil.

Daily maintenance

First remove loose and dry dirt using a soft brush or vacuum cleaner. Clean the surface using a pH-neutral cleaning agent diluted with water according to the manufacturer's recommendations.

Wipe the floor or worktop with a clean cloth, or use a wet vacuum cleaner for larger areas. Finish by rinsing with clean water and allow the surface to dry.

For worktops, the use of a microfibre cloth is recommended to minimise the risk of visible water marks after drying.

Cleaning agents

For daily cleaning, pH-neutral cleaning agents are recommended. The material is resistant to most commonly used cleaning products.

For stubborn dirt, strongly alkaline cleaning agents should be avoided. Instead, use cleaning products with a mildly acidic character suitable for the material.

Removal of grout residue

If the surface still appears dull after installation and regular cleaning, an alcohol-based cleaning agent, such as methylated spirits, may be used to remove remaining grout residue or installation-related deposits.
